Commitment to Accessibility, College-Community Relations, and Localized Teaching Initiatives

1. In 2004 I established a new “Undergraduate Student Textbook Fund” in Spanish and Portuguese studies to help defray the cost of required course books for majors and minors taking courses in the department who may have trouble covering the cost of books.
2. The second two classes of Humanities First (HUM 102 and 103), focus exclusively on the voices and histories of the Indigenous people of our region and the West Coast more broadly (in Winter), and on the voices and histories of Asian and Asian Pacific American communities in the PNW. To that end, in Winter we read Miranda’s Bad Indians: A Tribal Memoir; in Spring we read John Okada’s No-No Boy and Frank Abe and Tamiko Nimura’s We Hereby Refuse: Japanese American Resistance to Wartime Incarceration. Our seminars include field trips as well as author visits: in the Winter we visited the Burke Museum and the students met Deborah Miranda. In the Spring we visited the Seattle Asian Art Museum; the Frye Art Museum, the Duwamish Longhouse and Cultural Center and adjacent the h̄ʔapus Village Park & Shoreline Habitat; Kubota Garden; the International District; and—our final trip—the Suquamish Reservation and Museum, and the Bainbridge Island Japanese American Exclusion Memorial.

3. Organization of campus visits by students of Colville Reservation: Spring 2017 – 2020; Spring 2023. I am the sole organizer of these visits and take on sole responsibility for finding funding for them. Our visits include, e.g., meeting Indigenous students in Husky Athletics, meeting Indigenous faculty and students in the department of American Indian Studies, visiting MOES for lab visits, visiting the Burke Museum, visiting the Duwamish Longhouse and Museum and the h̄ʔapus Village Park & Shoreline Habitat (original site of one of the Duwamish villages).

Selected Professional Offices, Committees, Service

University Level Service

1. CEREAS Executive Board, 2024 – 2026
2. Faculty Advisor, First Nations Rocketry (housed in Earth and Space Sciences)
3. Dean’s Academy Fellow, 2023 – 2024
4. Invited participant, First Year Programs webinar (“Humanities First: Ask Me Anything”)
5. Invited to deliver Sample Class (“Advanced Technology from 2,000 Years Ago: STEM in the Ancient World”) as UW Humanities representative at the NACAC Virtual National College Fair, October 12th.
6. Invited Guest, Tour of the Annual Reading of the AP (Salt Lake City, Utah). (This visit was rescheduled for a future Spring due to the COVID-19 pandemic.)
7. Program Director, “Humanities First” 2020—

In addition to selecting and supervising our faculty (three faculty in AU; one each in WI and SP) and TAs (three TAs in AU), I work closely with the Divisional Dean of the Humanities, the Humanities First Program Coordinator, and the Humanities First Social Media Assistant, whose payroll I oversee. I contribute to the writing of the job advertisement for our new Program Coordinator, and therefore working with Human Resources, and I work with the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) fiscal team on the budgetary aspects of the program (from hiring faculty and TAs to arranging and paying for our field trips). I work closely with Admissions and Marketing and Communication on messaging about Humanities First and the Humanities Division in general, and with Humanities Academic Services (HAS) in arranging Priority Registration to incoming students who wish to take HUM 101. I work with both our Program Coordinator and our Social Media Assistant on the upkeep of our website and social media presence. I work with First Year Programs leadership to coordinate HUM 101 with a FIG every Fall, and to align our messaging to incoming students. Finally, I work with our Program Coordinator and community partners to schedule both classroom visits by authors (of the books we read in WI and SP) and local public radio producers, and our field trips into the region.

In addition to this, I developed HUM 208, a mentoring / internship course for second-year students who had completed the Humanities First series.

I am currently in the early stages of developing a new Humanities Minor for the Division.

8. Chair, “Humanities First” work group: September 2019 – May 2020

The “Humanities First” workgroup, instigated at the request of Divisional Dean Brian Reed, was tasked with developing the goals, structure, and curriculum for a FYE (First Year Experience) for entering freshmen who had indicated an interest in the Humanities; this FYE was the core of a Mellon Foundation grant proposal being produced by the Division. As chair of this work group, I convened faculty representatives from eight of the eleven departments in the Division (I count Classics as a ninth) and led bi-monthly meetings from early November through the beginning of March. In structuring the goals of the work group, I engaged in significant research into Humanities FYEs throughout the country and consulted directly with the Associate Dean of Arts and Humanities at UC Berkeley. Our group developed a novel format for this FYE, consisting of a large Autumn team-taught course on a “circulating faculty” model, followed by small Winter and Spring “Humanities Lab” seminars which focus on Humanities engagement in larger community. I personally wrote the curricular language included in the grant proposal, wrote and submitted the three course proposals for the Humanities courses developed, and wrote the syllabi that accompanied these proposals. The proposals passed UW Curriculum Committee review in February 2020, and the Division was awarded the grant ($700,000 over three years) in early March.

9. Chair, Faculty Council on Academic Standards: 2016 – 2019

The Faculty Council on Academic Standards (FCAS) is responsible for matters of university policy relating to the undergraduate academic affairs of the university, such as admissions policy, scholastic standards, university graduation requirements, and inter-institutional academic standards (as per the Faculty Code, Sec. 42 – 34). FCAS—a council consisting of a group of faculty broadly representing the campus, as well as representatives from Admissions, Advising, the Registrar, the President’s Office, and student organizations (ASUW and GPSS)—oversees the approval of all new or changed undergraduate degrees, majors, and minors for the University of Washington, Seattle campus; evaluation of admissions and graduation requirements; and the selection of Honors medalists and GPA cutoffs for university honors designations. As Chair of FCAS I conducted oversight of, and sat as a member on, the subcommittees on Admissions and Programs (SCAP) and Admissions and Graduation (SCAG), and the UW Curriculum Committee, which reviews all new and changed courses for the UW tri-campus group (UW Seattle, UW Bothell, and UW Tacoma). As Chair of FCAS I met regularly with the Vice Provost of Academic and Student Affairs to discuss campus-wide enrollment and curricular issues, with Deans and representatives of the two largest colleges on the UWS campus (College of Arts and Sciences and the College of Engineering) to discuss and
